Customer Reviews

Cade, Rhiann and their friends are back in this exciting installment in The Last Pendragon series of novellas. The Pendragon's Challenge sees the characters divide into two groups - Talieson, Catrin and Goronwy journey to the Otherworld to find the missing Treasures of the Britons, while Cade, Rhiann, Bedwyr and Hywel journey to Chester where Cade's uncle Penda is about to face off against King Oswin of Northumbria. There are plenty of surprises in store for our heroes and some unexpected twists that had me practically chewing through the pages wanting to find out how everything turns out. I really love this series - the characters are well-crafted, the story is brilliant - combining Celtic myth and Christianity and seamlessly into what can only be called a gem of a story. There is a hint of romance between two of the main characters - and you know I am a sucker for romance. I am now looking forward to the next exciting installment :)

I was quite disappointed in the presentation ... cutting a story into snippets and presenting it as multiple novellas, when each snippet was really a chapter in a book. The writing was good, the story interesting, but I felt cheated by the presentation. Sorry.

I love everything about this series and The Pendragon's Challenge is no exception. It combines fragments of history with the legend of King Arthur..... Or at least his descendant. If you enjoy books with magic and gods and knights, then this book is definitely for you. I highly recommend this series!

I really enjoyed this book, as I have all of Sarah Woodbury's well-written novels. This series is especially interesting as it highlights the mysticism of ancient Wales and wraps it up in a great murder mystery.

good read

Another captivating book by Woodbury. The time period feels authentic, the characters are real and the action/reaction to the plot kept me glued to the book.

Love Sarah Woodbury and this series of hers is awesome

Sarah never fails to leave me waiting for more.
