Grade 7 Up
In a clear, engaging, and elegant style, Nardo profiles five men, explains their roles in shaping the societies in which they lived, and discusses their lasting contributions to the understanding of science and philosophy. A discussion of the differences between the early thinkers of the East and the West and how they approached the major questions of nature and life establishes the groundwork for subsequent discussions of the works of Democritus, Plato, Aristotle, Buddha, and Confucius. End matter includes an appendix of original documents from the philosophers profiled, extensive chapter notes, and a long list for further reading. Black-and-white photographs, reproductions, and maps extend and enliven the presentation. This concise and accessible book is a great resource for students of philosophy and ancient history.
