Howard Hughes And The Spruce Goose: The Story Of The H-K1 Hercules

Synopsis

Howard Hughes' life ambition was to make a significant contribution to the field of aviation development. But the monumental folly of his endeavours on the H-KI Hercules meant that he came to be known and remembered to a great extent for all the wrong reasons. The 'Spruce Goose' (a name Hughes detested) became a product of his wild fixation on perfection and scale. Once completed, it was the largest flying machine ever built. Its wingspan of 320 feet remains the largest in history. Yet it only completed one flight; flying for a mile on its maiden voyage above Long Beach Harbour, before being consigned to the history books as a failure.

Experienced author Graham M. Simons turns his attention to the production process that saw this colossus take shape. In words and images, all aspects of this process are illustrated. We have shots taken during the initial design period, images of the craft under construction, and photographs taken at the test flights. In addition, Simons has been gifted access to the highly prized and rarely seen aircraft manual produced for the aircraft, content from which has been extracted and used to supplement the narrative.

The book goes on to explore the political issues that sprung up as a result of Hughes' endeavours, looking into the Senate War Investigations Committee's findings which explored the extent to which government funds had been utilised in the development and construction of the airship, adding a whole new layer of controversy to the proceedings.

Customer Reviews

My copy came with pages 1 thru 32 printed twice. Pages 33 thru 65 were missing. It was a real good read up to that point. was quick to send me another copy (kudos to). The rest of the book looks real interesting. Along with the extensive pictures, this books looks to cover the whole story of the Spruce Goose. Can't wait to read the whole thing. I give it 5 stars so far.

Don't waste your money on this book. Paragraph after paragraph were copied word-for-word from Charles Barton's book "Howard Hughes And His Flying Boat." Have never before encountered such blatant plagiarism. Mr. Simons should be ashamed of himself.

Wonderful book. I inherited a bookcase made from the scraps of the Spruce Goose, plus my father worked for Howard and this book added great insight.
